

Hyphenated Line Breaks

The configuration file is stored in the application directory, which is created on first launch and can be relocated by setting the environment variable before the service starts.